How personal data is processed when sending encrypted messages

To send an encrypted message, you have to log in to the secure messaging service with your email address.

When you log in, the system log saves your email address and the IP address of the device you used. The log data for communications is stored separately and is only used for producing the secure messaging service and for investigating possible errors and information security incidents as provided in the Act on Electronic Communications Services. The collected data is processed and stored only for providing the service and investigating possible errors and information security incidents. Processing personal data is necessary to comply with the controller´s statutory obligations (Article 32 of the EU General Data Protection Regulation, section 31 of the Act on the Processing of Personal Data in Criminal Matters and in Connection with Maintaining National Security).

For more information on how personal data is processed when using the secure messaging service, contact the authority that you are sending a message to; they are the controller responsible for the processing of personal data. The contact details of each authority are available on their website. Everyone has the right to submit a complaint about the processing of their personal data to the Data Protection Ombudsman, www.tietosuoja.fi
